Distinctive features	This assessment is for individual purposes: only the user has access to it.

On the back of the document, the user can read an interpretation of his or her score. When it is over 25, it is likely that the person respects the rights of residents. For totals between 15 and 25, it is suggested to be vigilant in regards to the respect of the rights of seniors. Finally, if the score is below 15, the individual is reminded that respect for individuals is an essential, basic requirement. Moreover, it proposes possible solutions to improve the quality of interventions.
